President's Message by Ann Barklow

Wow! What a great Annual Meeting and Awards Banquet last week!! It has by far become my most favorite meeting since I have been a member. Our minutes from the meeting are in this issue of the Thymes.

Many thanks to Linda Halsey who worked so hard on our Year In Review slide show. It was so fun to see all the projects we worked on together and the smiling faces. Also, thank you to Linda Halsey, Sandy Orr, and Betsy Russ who checked people in and handed out our voting ballots. Claudette Bannerman made sure that everyone received a brochure and free bookmark and Austin McInville, Jimmy's son handed out the door prize tickets. Janet Ledebuhr and Chuck Bender rounded up the ballots and counted the votes. Our social committee headed by Donna Feldmaier did an amazing job of decorating and made sure everything was ready to go when people arrived. We had sparkling stars and hearts and lovely plants on each table. The expenses were kept to a minimum, the plant decorations were from Donna's garden and are now back home with her. Our famous punch was delicious and most of the food and desserts were long gone by the end of the meeting. John Wham gave an awesome blessing before we chowed down. There was much laughter and a great time was had by all.

James Hodges and I had a great time handing out the badges and certificates to the 2010 class who have now become Full Fledged Master Gardeners and the certificates for Interns or "Master Gardeners in Training" for the 2012 class. Hour pins went out to a lot of hardworking members listed in our minutes and the Master Gardener of the Year went to the very deserving Linda Halsey!

Welcome to the new members of the board of directors: Secretary-Steve Tabor, Directors-Paddy Huff, Patti Larson, Jason Jordan, Trish Bridges, Linda Hamrick, Sandy Orr, and Janet Ledebuhr. The position for President and Vice President and Fundraising chair still remain open.

Please enjoy this issue. I wrote a review of the Greater Greenwood Master Gardener symposium and included a list from one of the talks on Unusual Southeastern Natives. You can't miss the article on Hugelkultur by Sandy Orr. Some of us are already trying to do this with some of our logs and soil! We have two important events coming up with the March 23 Home and Garden Show and the April 5 and 6th Plant Sale. Look for announcements in this issue.

Jeep Topiary chair, Jimmy McInville has been making great progress on the Jeep with the help of many of the Master Gardeners. Keep watching for his e-mails with workday announcements.

Unfortunately, I need to step down as president since I will be working for the City of Greenwood as a Horticulturist and it is a full time position. The nomination committee will be working on my replacement. In the meantime I will do the best I can and will be keeping us in a bit of a holding pattern with no new projects until my position is filled.

Thanks to all of you for making this such a great organization and for the countless hours you commit to our mission.

The mission of the Lakelands Master Gardeners, in association with the Greenwood County Clemson Extension office, is to extend to the public research-based education, horticultural programs and activities that enhance our environment, lives and community.

The Lakelands Master Gardeners Association is a volunteer organization made up of Master Gardeners from Abbeville and Greenwood Counties in SC.

Lakelands Master Gardeners Annual Plant Sale

Our biggest fundraiser of the year will take place on April 5th and 6th at the Greenwood Farmers Market. The sales from this fundraiser will determine how we serve our community. We would like to have every master gardener involved to help make this a success. These are some of the ways you can help reach our sales goal:

1. Donate Plants (we will pick plants up if you are not able to bring them).

2.Help with the set up and operation of our booth.

3.Purchase Plants

4.Tell all of your family and friends about the sale and encourage them to shop with us.

Please call me at 803-348-0256 or email me at sbcarroll96@yahoo.com if you would like to help. Thank You Sarah B. Carroll

Ann Barklow recognized by the YMCA as volunteer of the year for work with the children's vegetable garden. Congrats Ann.

Linda Halsey being presented with the Master Gardener of the Year Award by Ann Barklow and James Hodges. Congratulations to Linda!

You know you are a Master Gardener if:

- You get upset when you see uncared for plants in stores and you can't resist deadheading them and making them look nice.
- Early spring you only pull babies that you know for sure are weeds and leave the ones you're unsure of. After all, they might be volunteers that will turn into amazing new flowers.
- you have six pairs of shoes on the front porch covered in mud.

PIZZA PARTY AND PLANT DROP OFF FUN, FUN, FUN!!

THURSDAY, APRIL 4, 2013 4:00 to 6:30 pm

2012 Booth at the Farmers Market Building

This is our Main Fundraiser!

We are asking every Lakelands Master Gardener to Donate 12 plants or the equivalent of homemade/ crafted garden related Items for the April 5 and 6 Plant Festival

Best Sellers are weed free and healthy looking in nice pots such as clean nursery containers or solo cups with drainage. Unique and hard to find plants are a plus! Labels with botanical and common names with cultural requirements are preferred. A surprise table will be set up for the nameless. Pictures of the plant in flower increase sales. Print photos from the internet unless you have your own.

Worst Sellers are poorly presented, weedy, too high priced, too large and no plant names

Please contact Sarah Carroll at 803-348-0256 or sbcarroll96@yahoo.com Tell her what you will be bringing. A pickup service will be provided, if you are unable to drop them off

Don't miss out on this wonderful volunteer opportunity Keep track of your hours in planting and designing all your plants and items to sell and let Sarah know you want to help at the Sale.

http://news.erskine.edu http://youtu.be/nKKDFmXk4Fg While listening to the NPR Morning Show on the radio, Susanne Bender heard a report about bees that she thought was very interesting. We know that bees are attracted to flowers by color, but did you know they were also receiving electric signals from the flowers? The flowers have an electric field around them, signaling whether another bee has just been collecting pollen from that flower. The field around the flower stays charged for about 100 seconds, letting the bee know to bypass that bloom. The link below offers both a audio clip of the article as well as text. Index-Journal to host 2013 Home & Garden Show at the Greenwood Mall

Date: Saturday, March 23, 2013 10:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m. At the Greenwood Mall, Greenwood, SC

The Index– Journal Home and Garden Show is being held March 23rd in the Greenwood Mall. Our Master Gardener group will have a table at this event. The show runs from 10:00 AM to 3:00PM. We will have our 'Ask a Master Gardener' table set up from beginning to end and are looking for some volunteers to man the table. You will be will at least one other Master Gardener — no worries about being alone and being asked a question you have no clue how to answer. Our job is to field the questions and answer if you know the correct answer. If you don't know the answer simply take the client's name and phone number and as much information as possible to research the answer. Once you have the answer, contact the person with your information. If you are willing to help out, please let Janet Ledebuhr know. queenofseaford@yahoo.com or 374-7781. We are asking for a hour or two, if you can be there longer we welcome the extra support!

ANNUAL AWARDS BANQUET - FEB 21, 2013, Greenwood Metro District

Sandy Orr

Over 50 jovial interns, newly minted Master Gardeners, and old pros gathered to celebrate the conclusion of an eventful year and the beginning of a new organization. Business was efficiently conducted by Ann Barklow, President. A motion was made by Steve Tabor to dissolve the current Lakelands Master Gardener Association and move the assets to the new Lakelands Master Gardener Inc. Motion was seconded by Sandy Orr and passed unanimously. Ballots prepared by the Nominating Committee had been distributed to active members, those whose dues were paid and their annual hours had been completed. The officers elected were as follows: Secretary- Steve Tabor, Directors-Paddy Huff, Patti Larson, Jason Jordan, Trish Bridges, Linda Hamrick, Sandy Orr, and Janet Ledebuhr. The position for President and Vice President still remains open.

Ann Barklow indicated that until another President is selected, she will serve as best she can given her recent full time employment. We all appreciate her enthusiasm, attention to detail, and wonderful communication skills during the transition to incorporation. An extraordinary number of community projects were taken on during her tenure this past year. After the blessing by John Wham, we all enjoyed the creative potluck fare and best of all, the desserts. A wonderful slide show followed which illustrated the range of projects completed by the Master Gardeners, and the fun we all had doing them. Thanks to our Association photographers and Ann and Linda for organizing it.

Ann and James Hodges introduced the newly certified Master Gardeners and gave them their badges and certificates: Toni Able, Lynsey Bock, Mary Jo Cook, Doug Crawford, Priscilla Ellis, Beth Osteen, and Ann Stoddard. Congratulations.

Ann and James then introduced the new graduating class of 2012 and gave them their certificates:

Claudette Bannerman, Bonnie Baumhofer, Trish Bridges, Louann Collins, Savannah Durham, Donna Feldmaier, Linda Hamrick, Glorietta Jones, Phyllis Krohn, Susan Lawson, David McCall, Christine Moon, Terry Morse, and Betsy Russ. Welcome and we look forward to you getting your badges next year.

The pins for service hour recognition were given out by James and Ann: 100 Hours: Toni Able, Melody McInville, Rusty Wilson, Mary Woodiwiss. 250 Hours: Ann Barklow, Doug Crawford 500 Hours: John Wham 750 Hours: Linda Halsey, Sandy Orr 3,000 Hours: Nancy Collins

The Master Gardeners' next project will be the March 23rd Home and Garden Show, to be spearheaded by Janet Ledebuhr. She welcomes volunteers to staff our booth or do a demonstration for ½ hour. The meeting was adjourned after this announcement.

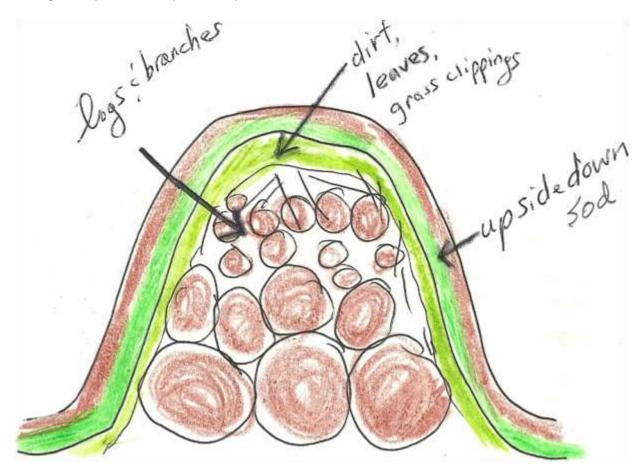

HUGELKULTUR

By Sandy Orr

To hear this word in all its beauty, you must befriend a native German. I tripped over this term when threading through an internet search beginning with "gardening in heavy mulch". Three dumploads of chipped trees were placed on my spare lot and I wanted to know if I could use them uncomposted and plant directly into the chips. (Turns out you can if you plant into the dirt beneath without stirring the wood chips into the dirt. The results on You Tube are spectacular). Pulling this thread led to the extreme form of this, known as hugelkultur or hill cultivation. In a nutshell, hugelkultur involves building a huge raised bed, the base of which is closely stacked logs (decomposed or new wood), covered with sod turned wrong-side up, into which plants are placed.

WHY DO THIS? IT'S UGLY. The ultimate benefit of either breaking your back, or using fossil fuel to run a bobcat, is that in the long run, this bed requires no irrigation. After having watched all the You Tube videos (thereby giving me a doctorate in hugelkultur), it seems that fruit grown in these hills tastes more intense, vegetables need no rotation, and Wagnerian arias serenade your gardening tasks.

I began my hugelkultur bed, by siting it so that it ran East/West. I had lots of logs due to snags in the woods where it's built. In addition, I wanted it to be in full sun, so I cut down several middling- sized trees (gasp!) that I'd like to think had problems already. My next layer was twiggy, leafy, shrubby material that was too woody to put in my good compost pile and had been offending the neighbors for the last five years. Dirt formed from years of oak leaf piles was stuffed into crevices and clay was used as primordial glue to keep things in place. It's not planted yet, but plans include putting zinnias all over it, so my neighbors long for the day when it was merely a pile of yard waste. Updates to follow in future newsletters.

Review of The Greater Greenville Master Gardener Symposium Held on Saturday, February 2, 2013

By Ann Barklow

The only thing I can say about this symposium is: I can see why it sold out. It is truly the Super Bowl of Horticultural Education. Over 300 gardeners showed up to hear 5 speakers that left the audience dizzy with information.

Kirk Brown, horticulturist, historian and dramatist dressed as John Bartram, America's first and foremost botanist and plant collector to give us a humorous and entertaining history of how horticulture began in Philadelphia. His description of gardeners: "that they are always testing, testing, testing, try this, try that, and forever looking for something different, something greener, bigger, smaller" certainly hit home to the crowd of mostly master gardeners. As Ben Franklin said: " I didn't fail the test, I just found 110 ways to do it wrong."

He left us with the assurance that we are all gardeners in God's place with a need to be in the earth and dirty. The world is our garden...protect it, preserve it, sustain it. This proved to be a theme echoed by the speakers.

I discovered why I like to be continually educated in the field of horticulture. It motivates me to try new things and stimulates me to be a better gardener. In other words, it sets me up for success and to garden in the southeast, I need all the help I can get! Alright, maybe I liked the free bag of potting soil, Daniels plant food, a garden ruler for bulb planting, Italian Silver Rib Heirloom Chard seeds, brochures to various horticultural treasures in South Carolina, several gardening magazines and at least ten catalogues of companies I hadn't heard of.

After Cory Tanner, Greenville extension agent's talk on extending your vegetable season, I ordered some hoops and row covers to extend my harvests. Learning that row covers can simulate living in Charleston by increasing my zone an entire number really made my day! The fact that 85% of the light can still get through to my plants takes the pressure off of me to remove them on cool sunny days.

Because mulch can cool the soil he talked about removing it in spring to warm the soil for the summer crops. That did not occur to me so I have it on my to do list. I love how mulch helps feed my soil as it breaks down and keeps my weeds from sprouting but this extra knowledge was a big help.

Mary Palmer Dargan who taught us how to Create the Garden You Love got me started on taking pictures of my garden to serve as before shots and start dreaming. She showed how our sketches of ideas do not need to be artist quality but merely doodles. The importance of asking yourself a lot of questions on how your property is used is something I've known but she used a technique I would have never thought of. Pretending you are in a hot air balloon floating over your property, draw where your house is and activities that happen there. This can be the UPS driver coming to your door, company arriving, hanging your hummingbird feeder, harvesting vegetables and herbs, going to the shed, your dogs paths and play areas, etc. Remember these are doodles, so put the perfectionist away and have fun.

I took the most notes in Larry Mellichamp's lecture on Unusual Southeastern Natives for your Garden. After vegetable gardening that is my second favorite interest. Dr. Mellichamp, director of the UNC Charlotte Botanical Gardens, discussed that there were merits to both exotic and native gardens so why not have a combination. Some interesting plants were Continus obovatus, the American Smoke Tree that loves the heat. The Acer leucoderme, Chalk Maple looked like a great substitute for the Japanese Maple, and he gave a list of Trilliums that are easier to grow. The Magnolia macrophylla, Big Leaf Magnolia would be an amazing specimen if you didn't mind the large leaf litter that can resemble dirty laundry hanging on your bushes. The list of 20 plants he gave us provided interesting, underutilized, grow able, and mostly available varieties to try. We have included this list in this newsletter. Print it out and keep it handy where you can refer to it before a native plant sale. The UNC Botanical Garden Sale is coming in April where many of these plants will be available. UNCCharlotte Spring Plant Sale Friday-Saturday April 19-20, 2013 8 am - 3 pm
